33. Plaintiff lacks standing to bring this lawsuit and some or all of the claims asserted.

36. The defendant did not commit battery with respect to Ennis, nor did anyone else for whose conduct the defendant could be liable.

37. Any force used by the defendant was reasonable in light of Ennis’ conduct as perceived by the defendant and the defendant’s obligations to carry out his law enforcement duties and for the protection of the traveling public, himself and others.

38. A law enforcement officer has the right to use reasonable force to carry out his lawful duties, and use of such force is not a battery or in any way wrongful or lacking justification or excuse.

39. Any force used by the defendant with respect to Ennis was reasonable and justified in the circumstances and not wrongful.

40. Any force used by the defendant was reasonable and pursuant to a lawful arrest and/or detention or stop.

41. The defendant was authorized by law and required pursuant to his law enforcement duties to stop, detain, arrest and/or seize Ennis.

61. The defendants asserts, so that it will not be assumed or considered waived, that this Court lacks jurisdiction, as further developments in this litigation may show.
